INTERVIEW WITH JIM RYUN AFTER 280

I thought both races were pretty good, although the mile race was a bit slower than I expected. (his splits were 62.4, 2:05.3, 3:08.3) for the mile.)

The half mile was more like it. I felt pretty good in both races. When I decided to make my moves the acceleration came nice and smooth. No, I'm not ready for a really big race yet. But I will try to run well in the Kansas Relays. That will be the only time this year during the dual meet season that I will run only one race. I don't know who will be in it as yet.

When will I run against Patrick again? I don't know but I hope it can be the Compton-Coliseum meet. Since it isn't definite, we also don't know at what distance it would be. Either the half or mile would be fine with me.

My goal this year? I haven't set any. My only aim is to keep improving. No, I haven't planned any two-mile races this year, although I may run some late in the year. I would also like to run a 5-mile. Also this year I would like to tour Europe.
