ON THE COVER

Pictured is the only American Junior to win a medal at the 1984 Los Angeles Olympic Games, Danny Harris of Iowa State. Not only did he capture the silver medal for the 400 hurdles behind Edwin Moses, but he won every 400 hurdle race he ran except the OG semi- and final where he ran against Moses. Although he skipped the Junior Nationals to compete in the Olympic Trials, his accomplishments in 1984, his first year in the event, were outstanding enough for Track & Field News to rank him as the #2 400 hurdler in the world. PREFACE

This is the seventh edition of the U.S. Junior Track & Field Annual. There are two major changes to the content of the book, one positive and one negative. Missing this year is a 1984 year list, which somehow slipped through the cracks caused by the busy Olympic-year schedules of me and my junior stat colleagues. A new addition to the annual is the 1984 Junior Team Pool, a compilation of height weight and date-of-birth for the top competitors at the 1984 Junior Nationals. I feel this is a valuable addition since many of these athletes will not make it into the indexes compiled by Dave Johnson and Howard Willman or Richard Hymans, both of which have stricter standards for inclusion. The addition of this feature will supplement those indexes which are published with the American Athletics Annual and the FAST/ATFS U. S. Annual.

Aside from the loss felt in the track & field world by the passing of Stan Eales, junior track & field suffered a loss in 1984 by the death of Max Zucker, publisher of Starting Line. His dedication to our sport has been an inspiration for me and for others involved in junior and youth athletics.

The editor is grateful to Howard Willman of Track & Field News, Jack Shepard, Mike Kennedy, Scott Davis, Bill Peck & Mark Zucker of Starting Line, and Pete Cava, for their help in the compilation of this book. Special thanks go to Laurie and Sunder Mazursky.

Send any corrections, amendments, and questions to the editor in care of Pete Cava, (TAC/USA, P.O. Box 120, Indianapolis, Indiana 46206) or at the address shown below.

WHAT'S A JUNIOR?

Junior competition in the United States has only recently conformed to the international definition.

Until 1972, the AAU Junior Championships were open to those who, regardless of age, had not won any (AAU) national championship that year nor had won any event in a foreign national championship, the NCAA Championships, the NAIA Championships, or the IC4A Championships. Members of Pan-American or Olympic teams of any country were ineligible for the Junior Championships.

This was the definition of "Junior" from 1900, when the first such championships were held, until 1972, when the present format was introduced.

Since 1972, the American Junior Championships have been limited to men at least 14 years old who would not turn 20 years old in the year of competition, and to women who are at least 14 years old and will not reach 19 during the year of competition. See TAC Rule 1(3).

There was a short period when women followed the same age rule as men, but this has been changed to the rule described above, which conforms with the definition used in Europe.

All statistics in this book are based on the present age rules.

The following chart illustrates the age rules:

TAC Junior Championships-Past Winners

The Junior Championships have only recently become truly "Junior" title meets. This list of champions presents only those champions decided in meets since the age limitations (men under 20; women under 19) have been in effect.

INTERMEDIATE MEN(14-15)

1981 marked the return of the Intermediate division to the National Junior Olympics Championships. After existing as a separate division in the 1967 and 1968 editions, the AAU NJO Championships were run with one division ages 14-17. Separate divisions returned with the inaugural TAC NJO Championships in 1981.

U.S. JUNIOR DUAL MEET RECORD

This is a compilation of dual meet competition involving US junior national teams. It is limited to those meets in which a formal score was tabulated for the competing teams. Hence, it is not an exhaustive list of all international matches in which a junior team from the US was a participant. In the list, the US score is always listed first.
