9th Annual Winter Corporate Relays

It was an untypically beautiful day for the untypically wet month of February the drought ridden section of Northern California. On this day, the teams cal out, nine to be exact, before the sun would go back into hiding and send the fair weather runners back to their StairMasters. The day started briskly enough with a 2.6 mile cross-country race through the campus of Los Gatos High School. There was a pack of 3 through two miles but at the tape it was Brian Schonfeld of Sun Microsystems winning in a new course record time of 15:09.
The women's race saw the winner leading from start to finish, Jane Worden was also from Sun and also set a new course record with a time of 16:53.

We then moved to the track for the first of 15 events. The featured event, the Human Baton Relay, was the second event contested, or was to be. It seems that no team was able to field a complete team and so no points were awarded in it's first (and last) running. (Many teams would later regret passing up on those valuable 10 points awarded to the victor.) The next 6 events saw the lead flip-flop between 6 different teams. It wasn't until the 9th event that IBM was able to break away and establish a 13-point lead over GE, HP & SRI with just 4 events remaining. But IBM was just beginning to run into their own problems. Being able to field only one team for the next 4 events, they saw their lead dwindle down to 3 points and then finally fell in the hole by 9 points with just one event remaining (and both HP & SRI just 2 points right behind them). The Sprint Relay is always an exciting event, but with the Winter Relays title on the line, it was even more meaningfull for both GE and IBM. Although IBM came through with the needed 1st place, GE was able to secure 4th in the event garnering enough points to hold onto the Team Championship. Just as important, however, IBM was able to distance themselves from both SRI & HP to secure themselves a top 3 finish for the first time since 1985 when they won the Relays. Congradulations!!

Rounding out the rest of the teams were HP & SRI tied for 3rd (with newly turned master runner Brock Hinzmann helping his team to a new meet record in the Masters Plus Relay), Syntex in 5th with 45 points, Sun and AT&T fighting it out with 35 and 32 points, respectivly, Pac*Tel in 8th and Maxtor/Mips Technologies in 9th by winning the one event that they participated in.

All in all, it was a filling and tiring day (with only one hamstring pull), and you could hear the stories and laughter abound at the annual awards party at the local pizza parlor. Some of the best laughs came however while watching the day's video ... people could be sure that for this one day, everyone who was there had one heck of a good time, even the kids. Until next year... see you at the track...
