Culver City, Calif., Dec. 8 - Byron Lowry returned to the scene of his costly wrong turn that deprived him of the 1969 AAV Marathon championship, stayed on the course and won the 1970 Western Hemisphere Marathon in 2:21:07.6. After the usual early position changes, he ~~settled~~ settled into a ~~5.00~~ ^{five minute} mile pace with Bill Hokey, his companion at the distance runners training camp this summer, next to him. Lowry pulled away in the final miles as Hokey finished in 2:23:23.2. Third place went to Peter Fredrickson, a 25-year-old Swede who attends U.S.I.U. (United States International University, formerly Cal Western) in San Diego.

The race began in smogless, ~~70°~~ 70° weather at 8:00 AM, but as the race progressed the mercury approached 80° and runners from Lowry, who said he felt the effects of the heat, to plodders had their times slowed and suffering increased by the unusual warmth of a December day in Southern California.

Lowry, who placed ~~2nd~~ third in the 1970 AAV Marathon championship in June had been told by AAV officials that he would be sent to the Kosice Marathon in Czechoslovakia. However, as the time for the race approached (September or October) he heard nothing from the AAU. Letters to Ollon Cassel went unanswered, so Lowry became discouraged and cut his training to almost nothing by early October. He had ~~not~~ not planned to take any classes because of Korie, but at the last minute, he was able to sign up for the two classes he needs to gain his B.S. in engineering from San Jose State College and to find a job.

Although more than ~~400~~ 400 runners again started the race, few of last year's leading runners appeared. Of the top 10 finishers only Bill Anderson (5th in 2:27:15.8,) and Dave Waco (13th in 2:35:27.0) showed up for this year's event. Fred Ritcherson and Chuck Smead, who ^{both} followed Lowry off the course last year, and Bob Deines, who was injured during last year's race, failed to appear.

Unlike last year, nothing ~~unusual~~ unusual was produced by young or old marathoners as men in their 20's dominated the top places. The three-hour mark was broken by 72 runners and a handful of women were allowed to run, but not to officially enter. At least four finished. Bob Brice started but was one of the 200 non-finishers. Ernie Cunliffe finished in over 3 hours.
