

Ex-Stanford runner sixth in marathon

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) — Bill Scobery of Arcata, Calif., won the Western Hemisphere Marathon run Sunday, covering the through-the-streets course in 2 hours, 15 minutes and 21 seconds. 12/6

Scobery beat by nearly two minutes the old course mark set by Ireland's Peter McArdle in 1962. Norm Higgins of Quaker Hill, Conn., was a close second in 2:15:52 and Jacinto Sabinal of Mexico was third in 2:17:30.

Former Stanford distance ace Greg Brock was sixth and Jerome Liebenberg, one of America's top steeplechasers, was ninth.
