Facilities — Stanford Golf Course

The beautiful Stanford University Golf Course is home to the Cardinal men's and women's cross country teams. A shady site covered with more than 300 oak trees, the course is both picturesque and challenging.

And just as rich as the scenery is the tradition of top flight cross country competition. Home of the NCAA District 8 Cross Country Championships for the past five years, the course has challenged some of the finest distance runners in the world. Among the well-known harriers to race along its fairways have been Oregonians Steve Prefontaine, Alberto Salazar and Rudy Chapa; Washington Staters Henry Rono and Joel Cheruyiot; Cal Poly SLO's Maggie Keyes; Berkeley's Jan Oehm; and Stanford's own Tony Sandoval (the 1980 U.S. Olympic Trials marathon champion), Don Kardong, and Duncan Macdonald.

Stanford Invitational

The Stanford Invitational Cross Country meet will be held for the eighth time in 1982, and will once again feature some of the nation's strongest men's and women's cross country teams. Some 40 squads, with athletes numbering over 300, will be at the start at 9 a.m. on Saturday, October 9 at the Stanford Golf Course. The Cardinal men are looking to better last year's fifth place finish while the women hope to once again capture the championship title.

Cross Country Heritage

Cross country has been a varsity sport at Stanford since 1916 for men, and since 1977 for women. Over the years, the men's program has produced some of the nation's finest distance runners, including All-Americans Harry McCalla '65, Greg Brock '70, Brook Thomas '70, and Don Kardong '71.

In 1972, the Cardinal finished second as a team in the NCAA National Cross Country Championships, and in 1979, the team won the Pacific-10 Southern Division Conference Title. Former Cardinal captain Rod Berry missed gaining All-America status by just four places in the 1980 NCAA Championships.

Despite its relative youth, the Stanford women's cross country program is fast becoming one of the nation's finest. Three successful recruiting years in a row have provided the Cardinal with impressive talent. In 1980, Stanford was able to sign Ellen Lyons of Boise, Idaho; in 1981, Ceci Hopp of Cos Cob, Conn.; and in 1982, Alison Wiley of Toronto, Canada. Each athlete was considered the finest high school distance runner in the nation during her senior year.

In 1981, the Cardinal women placed third in the NCAA Championships and were ranked third overall in the nation.

Coaches

BROOKS JOHNSON Women's Coach

Brooks Johnson, Stanford's director of track and field since 1979 and the women's cross country coach since 1981, has recently been named the head track and field coach for the U.S. Women's Olympic Team.

Johnson, 48, along with his accomplishments with the Cardinal (his 1981 squad placed 3rd at the NCAA championships and ranked 3rd in the nation), has an outstanding international coaching background as well. He served as the sprint coach of the U.S. Olympic Team at Montreal in 1976, and was a key coaching staff member of U.S. national teams in 1969, 1971, 1973, 1974, 1978 and 1980.

Sixteen of his athletes have become Olympic Team members, and he has produced many national champions and several world-record holders in his long coaching career. Currently, Johnson, the first black head coach in Stanford history, is a member of the U.S. Olympic Committee House of Delegates and is the national sprint coordinator for the U.S. Women's Development Committee.

MIKE TOMASELLO Men's Coach

Mike Tomasello, now in his third season as Stanford's men's cross country coach, is accustomed to success.

A 1967 graduate of the University of Tennessee who helped coach the Volunteers to the 1972 NCAA team championship, Tomasello guided the Cardinal to a first place finish in both the Fresno and Cal Poly SLO Invitational meets last fall.

Tomasello, who was recently appointed to the Olympic Development Committee as the Western Regional Coordinator for the 1500 meters, has, in the past two seasons, signed the top two prep recruits in the nation.

Johnson

Tomasello

Prior to his appointment in February, 1980, he had served as head track and field coach and special education coordinator at T.C. Williams H.S. in Alexandria, Va. His Williams' teams won 15 indoor and outdoor district championships, eight regional titles and one state championship. Seven of his athletes earned All-America status and four participated on the U.S. Junior National Track and Field Team.

Two-time NCAA 800-meter champion Willie Thomas was one of his proteges at Tennessee and a member of Tomasello's strong middle-distance teams that won three Penn Relays crowns.

ESTHER STROY-FAIR Women's Assistant

The organizer and a member of the Howard University track team from 1973-77, Stroy-Fair was the youngest member of the 1968 U.S. Olympic Team that competed in Mexico City. She was a member of the Sports International AAU 440-relay team that set a world record time of 3:39.8 in 1975.

In 1971, Stroy-Fair won both gold (1600-meter relay) and bronze (200 meters) medals at the Pan American Games competition. She has also been a member of U.S. national teams that toured Canada, Hawaii, Europe and Martinique.

Stroy-Fair recently served as a sports consultant for the NFL Players' Association Sports Direction Foundation in Washington, D.C.

1982 Outlook

"I want to move forward, one big step beyond where we were last year," says Stanford head men's cross country coach Mike Tomasello. "And that step should take us to where we want to go." And on that note, the Cardinal thinclads will enter the 1982 season with a healthy attitude.

It can't help to be healthy when such stalwarts as senior Bill Graham and junior Jim Smith, this year's co-captains, return to lead a group that should contend for southern Pac-10 supremacy.

Graham, who has been labeled a definite threat "to break into the top echelon of Pac-10 runners", is the present Stanford school record holder in the 10,000 meters. Smith was the number two man last season (behind graduated Rod Berry) and still holds the Stanford course record for a freshman. Each promises to be a leader in his own right.

But the talent does not stop there. "I'm pleased with the ability of the returning upperclassmen," says Tomasello. "In fact, we have the capability of being one of the top three teams in the Pac-10 if we reach our potential. The key to the season will be how quickly we develop a five man nucleus. We can't afford to wait until the Southern Pac-10's to see who will emerge in that fifth spot."

It's a good bet that one of those to emerge in the top five will be Brian Pettingill, a sophomore whom Tomasello describes as "a jewel". "Pettingill is one of the top middle distance prospects in the U.S.," says the coach. "And as he continues to improve, there's no telling how far he can go." A former prep All-America at Bishop Cheverus High School in Portland, Me., Pettingill finished 15th in the Southern Pac-10 Championships last season.

"Even though we have a very young team with only one senior returning," says Tomasello, "I consider us to be fairly experienced. Besides Graham, Smith and Pettingill, we also have Jeff Atkinson and David Frank who are well-seasoned. And Ed Callaway has appeared in our top seven as well."

But there are three others from whom Tomasello is hoping to reap immediate rewards — freshmen Charles Alexander, Mark Schrage and Ryan Stoll. Alexander was the number one schoolboy cross country runner in the nation this past year, evidenced by the fact that he was the Kinney Schoolboy National Champion. A graduate of St. Christopher's High School in Richmond, Va., Alexander was the Penn Relays titlist in the 3200 meter run this past spring.

As is Alexander in Virginia, both Schrage and Stoll also are reigning state high school champions — Schrage in Montana and Stoll in Illinois. "They promise to add to the depth of our program," says Tomasello, Brian Pettingill finished 15th at last year's Southern Pac-10 championships.

Outlook

The start of the 1981 Stanford Cross Country Invitational.

"and the support they can provide is a luxury we've never had before."

Depth was the problem a year ago when injuries were more abundant than original expectations were high. "We came out of the chute fairly well," recalled Tomasello, "but faltered in our own invitational. We came back well in the Cal Poly meet, which we won, and then ran our best meet of the year as a team in the Southern Pac-10's, placing four in the top 15. Unfortunately, our No. 1 man finished 30th, so we came in fourth in the overall standings. It seemed we just never could hit on all cylinders together.

"This season I would place us in a contending role for southern Pac-10 honors," notes Tomasello, "although overall I feel the division is up for grabs between Stanford, UCLA, Arizona and California. Oregon could be in it in the north, but Washington State will be the clear favorite to take the Pac-10 title in Fresno.

"As I said, I would like to see us take that one step beyond where we were a year ago," says the coach.

Without stretching the imagination too far, that "step" could allow Stanford to leap to a title in 1982.

Pettingill

Smith

CHARLES ALEXANDER Richmond, Va. Fr.

The number one high school long distance runner in the U.S. this past year . . . The Kinney Schoolboy Cross Country national champion . . . The Golden West champion at 3,000 meters . . . At St. Christopher's School, Charles became the Virginia private school champion in both cross country and at 3200 meters for the last two years . . . The Penn Relays champion at 3200 meters . . . "We're excited to have a runner with the capabilities of an Alexander with us," says head coach Mike Tomasello.

BILL GRAHAM Grafton, Va. Sr.

Co-captain (along with Jim Smith) . . . A definite threat to break into the upper echelon of Pac-10 finishers this season . . . Now holds the Stanford 10,000 meter school record (28:54.5), breaking Tony Sandoval's mark of 28:55.6 . . . Ran the fastest times on the team last season in both the 5,000 and 10,000 meter runs . . . Placed second among Stanford runners (21st overall) in NCAA District 8/Pac-10 Cross Country Championships last November at the Stanford Golf Course . . . A three-year letterman . . . "Bill is a hard worker whose use of time and energy is well spent," says Tomasello.

BRIAN PETTINGILL Cumberland, Me. So.

Perhaps the top middle distance prospect in the U.S. . . . His best finish was 15th at the Southern Pac-10 Championships . . . Improved his mile time by 11 full seconds in one year . . . Presently holds the Stanford freshman marks in both the 800 meters (1:50.0) and 1,500 meters (3:43.9) . . . Although bothered by illness, he placed 38th at the NCAA District 8 Cross Country Championships at Stanford last year . . . "Brian's top attribute is his ability to adjust," says Tomasello.

JIM SMITH Haddonfield, N.J. Jr.

Co-captain (along with Bill Graham) . . . The number two man in the lineup last fall . . . Has displayed marked improvement while at Stanford, jumping 2-1/2 seconds in his 1500 and 20 seconds in his 5,000 meter times last year alone . . . Clocked a personal best 29:48 at Cal Poly San Luis Obispo Invitational last fall in the 10K . . . Was 16th in a field of 223 at the Stanford Invitational a year ago . . . An All-America in cross country while at Haddonfield Memorial High School . . . All-State in track . . . New Jersey state high school cross country champion . . . Silver medalist in the 3,000 meter run at the Penn Relays in 1979 . . . "Even as a junior, Jim is considered a very experienced Pac-10 runner," says Tomasello.

1982 Outlook

Last year at this time, Stanford Director of Track Brooks Johnson, who was taking on the added responsibility of head coach of women's cross country, was predicting a national finish "somewhere in the top 10" for his new squad. As it was, the Cardinal placed a resounding third at the first-ever NCAA's at Echo Hills Golf Course in Wichita, Kansas. This year Johnson is predicting "we'll go into the season among the top three". Which means, in so many words, that Stanford has a legitimate chance to win the national championship.

And why not? A quick glance at the Stanford roster indicates that "everyone is back" from the team that finished third best in the country with 105 points (behind winner Virginia with 65 and second-place Oregon with 83).

"Based on our showings at the NCAA's and the TAC, we should be one of the favorites at the national level," says Johnson. "With everyone returning, and with the caliber of the recruits that we've added, I like our chances if all goes well."

Kim Schnurpfeil and Ceci Hopp, a pair of extraordinary runners, head a talented list of returnees. Schnurpfeil, the team captain, is the lone senior on the squad. Already labeled one of Stanford's all-time greatest, Kim is the reigning NCAA 10,000 meter champion. She finished 27th as an individual at the NCAA Cross Country Championship last fall, just missing All-America honors.

Kim is, however, an All-America in track — by finishing second in the 5,000 meter run at the AIAW Indoor Nationals in 1981, and by finishing first in the 10,000 and fifth in the 5,000 meters at the NCAA's last June. She followed up the NCAA performance by capturing the 10,000 meter run at The Athletics Congress National Championships with the 9th best time (33:25.88) by an American woman in history. She thus became the first woman to ever double as 10,000 meter champion at both the NCAA's (or AIAW's) and TAC. "She epitomizes competitive grace," says her coach.

Another who has made quite a splash on the Farm is Hopp. Like Schnurpfeil, Ceci also won an event at the NCAA's last June — the 3,000 meters (9:28.92), thus becoming an All-America. But, getting back to the sport at hand, Hopp, who was Stanford's top performer all year long as a freshman, did not disappoint at the 1981 NCAA Cross Country Championships as she finished 10th overall. And, yes, by so doing she became an All-America there as well.

Paramount in importance to this team is another pair of young, but seasoned performers — junior Patti Sue Plumer and sophomore Ann Locke. Plumer took 23rd at the NCAA's last season to place second behind Hopp among all Stanford runners in that meet (good enough for All-America status). She is also the current American collegiate record holder in the 3,000 meter run indoors (9:15.6), although she finished second to teammate Hopp at the Outdoor NCAA's in that event last June with a time of 9:29.49.

Locke placed 45th at the NCAA

Outlook

Cross Country meet and 7th in the 10,000 at the Outdoor NCAA's. Both she and Plumer are "dedicated workers", according to Johnson.

Yet another young veteran is sophomore Michelle Mason, who finished third at The Athletics Congress Cross Country Championships. She, sophomore Regina Jacobs and junior Ellen Lyons, who missed almost all of last season due to knee surgery (ligaments), will be relied upon for depth. Lyons' only appearance a year ago was in the NCAA finals where she finished 55th (17:49.6). She, like Hopp, is a former Kinney Prep Cross Country National Champion. Jacobs placed fourth in the 800 meters in June at the NCAA's.

Then there is the outstanding crop of rookies — four in all. First in line in that group is Alison Wiley, considered the finest female high school distance runner in North America last year. A native of Toronto in Canada, Wiley placed 10th at the world cross country championships in Italy earlier in 1982.

Other frosh include Jessica Spies of Livermore, Calif., who has made the National Junior Team each of the past two years; Betsy Wilkins, the North Carolina state high school champion; and Palo Alto's Esther Berndt, who placed 4th in the California State meet in the 1600 meters.

A particularly pleasing development in the Cardinal scheme of things is the fact that Stanford has joined a new women's conference, the Western Collegiate Athletic Association. "We're now associated with the best women's conference in the country," says Johnson, "and that is the best place for us to be." UCLA and Arizona State should provide Stanford with its toughest competition from the loop.

If form holds true, Johnson will have quite a team to guide — perhaps the NCAA championship team.

Stanford jumps out in front.

Stanford Heritage

UNIVERSITY

Since its founding by Leland and Jane Stanford as a memorial to their only child, Stanford University has emerged as one of the foremost academic institutions in the world.

Organized in 1891, the University covers some 8,200 acres from the plain of California's Santa Clara Valley into the foothills of the Santa Cruz Mountains, beyond which lies the Pacific Ocean. The acres of fields, rolling hills and wooded retreats, streams and lakes comprise one of the finest settings of any American university. Beyond Stanford land, within a short distance, are not only the ocean and numerous beaches, but the city of San Francisco with all its cultural, entertainment and recreational activity.

Annually, Stanford enrolls approximately 12,800 students, of whom 6,600 are undergraduates. About 48 percent are from California and the rest from the other 49 states and some 80 countries.

The University is organized into seven schools: Earth Sciences, Education, Engineering, Graduate School of Business, Humanities and Sciences, Medicine and Law. Among the approximately 1,100 faculty members who make up the Stanford Academic Council, there are nine Nobel laureates and four Pulitzer Prize winners.

ATHLETICS

Along with a reputation nearly unmatched in education, Stanford holds a similarly high distinction in the realm of athletics.

Continually striving for excellence, Stanford provides student-athletes with the finest in coaching, facilities, and competitive opportunities. Success is realized not only in the form of NCAA titles, All-America honors, league championships and bowl game victories, but also in the development of each athlete's potential to the fullest. "Stanford is proud of a program that appeals to every aspect of the University," says Athletic director Andy Geiger. "Whether a student possesses extraordinary skills or is learning a lifetime activity at the beginner level, we are able to provide proper staff and facilities for optimum development and enjoyment."

Annually some 400 students compete in intercollegiate athletics, while participation in intramurals has reached 13,000 with many individuals active in more than one intramural sport. Physical education class enrollment generally averages 9,000 per year, again with a considerable overlap. In addition, 31 club sport teams compete at Stanford.

Today, the Stanford intercollegiate sports realm includes 24 varsity sports with excellence represented in accomplishments on the national level of competition. The University has claimed 28 national team championships and 135 individual national titles. Cardinal Olympians are numerous with the likes of two-time decathlon gold medalist Bob Mathias and swimming gold medalist Kim Peyton among them.
