De Anza finds surprise on the run

By Dave Kellogg
Special to the Times Tribune

Jill Schlumpenberger was spending a pleasant Wednesday afternoon last week jogging around the De Anza College track, when a stranger approached her.

Schlumpenberger hadn't given any thought to going out for cross country. But De Anza coach Rich Roesky persuaded her to try it, just for the day.

By Saturday, Schlumpenberger was De Anza's top runner, finishing tenth in her first race ever, the Golden Gate Conference Invitational. She led the Dons to a surprising third behind Foothill and West Valley.

That performance has thrown a bit of a scare into the GGC coaches, especially Foothill's Peanut Harms, for whom Roesky coached two years ago. Now that Schlumpenberger has joined Cecilia Saleme, Kathy Hamilton, Carol Harris, and Carol Bagley at De Anza, Harms believes the Dons are a threat, along with West Valley, to take the GGC title from defending champion Foothill.

"Watch out for De Anza," Harms said. "I know what it's like (being in Roesky's position). When I first started I was going to aerobic classes just to get people to run, but Rich has done a heck of a job putting together a team."

However, Foothill may be too strong to be upset. As a team, Foothill finished nearly a minute faster at the GGC Invitational than in winning the meet last year.

The GGC dual meet season starts Thursday afternoon at 2:30 at Coyote Hills in Newark.

Volleyball

De Anza got a glimpse of the quality of play it figures to face in the state tournament, when the Dons finished second in the Santa Ana Invitational over the weekend.

"We're sitting pretty good (for the state tournament)," De Anza coach Debi Schafer said.

De Anza defeated Taft, Dixie of Utah, Cerritos and Mira Costa in straight sets to win its pool. The Dons then beat Grossmont, 15-7, in the quarterfinals, but lost to Santa Ana in the semifinals. De Anza beat College of the Sequoias in the consolation finals, 15-6.

Schafer liked what she saw at the tournament. Sue Casey and Lisa Maneggie blocked well, and Schafer was able to use Theresa Smith, who has been out with an injured ankle, in spots.

De Anza will be in Stockton Wednesday night to play San Joaquin Delta.

Soccer

The GGC schedule gets under way this week, featuring a rematch of last season's GGC finals, when De Anza visits Foothill on Friday at 3:15 p.m.

Foothill beat De Anza in the finals last season, 2-0, but lost in the state playoffs to Skyline.
